

SARA LOWE'S CALLING TO SERVE

The team here at Ebenezer would like to highlight Sara Lowes 20 year commitment to our clinic! Sara received her RN and BSN from Vanderbilt and was the head nurse in a pediatric surgery unit in Nashville. When she started her family, she took a step back from nursing and stayed home with her children. Sara went back to nursing once her kids were grown up, but felt it would be most beneficial to her and her patients if she furthered her education. Sara received her MSN from Marshall University in 1999 and in the year 2000 our paths finally crossed!

Sara came to Ebenezer as a volunteer because she needed clinical experience. She explained, "Many of my classmates worked here and enjoyed it. I was drawn to the clinic because of its Christian focus and felt coming here was a mission and a calling." She is especially thankful that she can provide care to those with barriers to accessing healthcare, and those who are uncomfortable with a typical doctor's office. She believes the entire program continues to make it possible for people facing injustices to have fair healthcare access. Sara stated, "Ebenezer is there to fill the gaps where other providers lack. If a patient is a widow, divorced, or left without a job and access to healthcare, we are there for our patients in limbo." She believes that the healthcare system can be difficult to navigate, but is proud that EMO is here to help patients get through the trials and tribulations.

THANKFUL THURSDAY

Sara hopes Ebenezer continues to train new providers and offer training to those without clinical experience. She said, "As a healthcare facility, it is important to change with the times. We did it in the past and we will continue to do so. Things can get lost in bigger facilities, but here we have a unique way of solving problems." When asked if there was anything else she would like to add, Sara wanted to express how thankful she is for the opportunity to work at Ebenezer and to give thanks to Yvonne Jones and Rebecca Glass for all they've done for the clinic over the years. Thank you, Sara, for everything you've helped us accomplish over the years! We truly love and admire your dedication to our mission and your patients!
